Problem:

Around the world, 775 million people live without power. And sadly, this number has remained the same or even increased in the last couple of years. Escalating food and fuel prices, especially for impoverished families in developing and/ or war-torn nations, have left many of the most vulnerable cut off from the power grid. This leaves the children growing up in these communities at a great disadvantage. Beyond the loss of the basic necessities that ease life for people on a working power grid, the loss of light has been the most pervasive problem for people living in these conditions- especially children. Without a dependable, affordable and safe source of light, when the sun goes down, their day essentially ends. Simple tasks, such as using the outdoor latrine or trying to do homework, become dangerous. And using a candle or kerosene lamp poses huge fire risks, especially if the family lives in a small wooden home.

Solution:

To help address this problem, Love Without Boundaries partnered with Solight Design, the maker of the SolarPuff light. SolarPuff lights are handheld lights that are bright, waterproof, durable and sustainable. They charge during the day in the sunlight, and by nighttime they can provide up to 12 hours of light. For the last seven years, Love Without Boundaries has distributed 9,880 SolarPuff lights to those living in darkness in Cambodia, India, Guatemala, Uganda and Ukraine.

“We at Solight have been blessed with our partnership with Love Without Boundaries for many years now and have delighted the hearts and minds of children in Ukraine, India, Guatemala, Cambodia, Uganda and more,” said Solight Design founder Alice Chun. “Our lights have brought joy and created safer environments for homework. We hope to continue to bring safety and hope with our SolarPuff lights to children in need around the world. We pray for a bright future for their families and ours. We stand together as one for the benefit of all. Thank you Love Without Boundaries!”

In the future, Love Without Boundaries hopes to continue its Solight campaign by turning donations received into sustainable, ecologically friendly illumination for children in darkness. To donate, visit lovewithoutboundaries.com/donate.
